Battlefield detectives : Rome versus Gaul : the siege of Alesia. [New York, NY] : A&E Television Networks :, c2006.

Narrator, Gavin MacFadyen. "To the victor go not only the spoils, but the chance to dictate history, to create the version of events that will be passed down through generations as unquestionable truth. Such was the case when Rome's supreme general, Julius Caesar, defeated a quarter million Gauls at Alesia with fifty-thousand Roman soldiers. Extraordinary indeed, but until now we've had to rely only on Caesar's account of the battle that shaped the map of modern Europe. How did he do it? Battlefield Detectives challenges the word of Caesar and the weight of history with recent archaeological discoveries, systematic analysis of Roman warfare, and extraordinary photographic evidence that reveal the secrets of Caesar's success. In this amazing episode, gain knowledge that has been lost for two thousand years." -- Publisher's web site.

Dead reckoning. New York, NY : A & E Home Video ;, c2003.

Interviews with: Jeffery A. Gomes, Bob Thompson, Patricia Eakes, Terry McAdam, Kim Duddy, Ross Gardner, Christiana Allen Hoch, Steve Cain, George Johnston, Neil Wachter, Michael Croteau, Michael B. Savage. The use of blood spatter evidence has become widespread, and investigators now employ sophisticated tools to link killers and victim through the blood of both. Follow two cases that illuminate the current state of this technique. First, examine the Wilson murders, a case which started with the discovery of a strangled 20-year-old girl. When police went to her home, they found the entire family brutally murdered. Next, two tiny traces of blood, almost invisible to the naked eye, help close a case that starts when reporters at a local paper come into work to find blood dripping from the ceiling!.

Dead reckoning. New York : A & E Home Video ;, c2003.

Interviews with: Ralph Higdon, Tommy Haire, Ward Schwoob, Susan Livingston, Dave Williams, Merv Stephens, Mike Ellis, Neil Wade, Pat Juhl, Walt Jaques, Brian Storman, Jim Beining, Mike Ring, Melissa Suddeth, Bill Loughery. Focuses on the technology that detectives bring to bear on their investigations. First, Kathy Hidgon is murdered and is found by her husband in their home. The investigation soon focused on an ex-con who had worked for the Hidgons. Unconvincing testimony forces the police to turn to the physical clues for the ultimate answer. Next, a suspect in a years-old rape disappears mysteriously, forcing police to turn to remnants from his trash in search of DNA evidence. But the results further complicate an already tricky case, and point to the limitations of relying too heavily on technical results.

- DVD 791.43 F194 disc 1,2 The fall of the Roman Empire. Two-disc deluxe ed.; widescreen format (2.20:1). [New York, N.Y.] : Weinstein Company Home Entertainment, c2008.
Disc 1 (89 min.) -- disc 2 (96 min.). Sophia Loren, Stephen Boyd, Alec Guinness, James Mason, Christopher Plummer, Anthony Quayle, John Ireland, Omar Sharif, Mel Ferrer. Marcus Aurelius Antonius, the philosopher-emperor of Rome, summons his empire's governors and princes to his German war headquarters for a Pax Romanus. He confides to his daughter, Lucilla, that his adopted son, Livius, will succeed him instead of his more unstable heir, Commodus. Overhearing this, Cleander, a blind prophet loyal to Commodus, presents Marcus with a poisoned apple. After the funeral, Livius, who does not share Lucilla's ambition for himself or Rome, allows Commodus to proclaim himself emperor. While pestilence ravages Rome, Commodus continues his vain, licentious behavior. He ultimately neglects to deal with all symptoms of unrest and banishing anyone reminding him of his responsibilities. A fictionalized account of the ascension of Roman Emperor Commodus, in which Commodus assassinates his father (Emperor Marcus Aurelius) when he learns that Aurelius had planned to name Aurelius' adopted son Livius (a fictional character) as Aurelius' successor.

- DVD 937.7 H539 Herculaneum uncovered. Widescreen ed. [Alexandria, Va.] : PBS Home Video, c2007.
Ancient Herculaneum -- Destruction -- Buried beneath the ash -- Rediscovery -- Aqua vitae -- Horror in Herculaneum. Narrator: Liev Schreiber. Pompeii, the lost Roman city buried by the eruption of Vesuvius in 79 A.D. has long been a source of fascination to archaeologists. Its sister city Herculaneum, buried in the same eruption but to a much greater depth, reveals an even more complete picture of Roman life. The high temperature of gases that engulfed Herculaneum perfectly preserved much of the ancient city. This film tells of the scientific advances in our knowledge of the two cities. The Herculaneum Conservation Project works with vulcanologists and forensic scientists to piece together the mystery of how the Herculaneans lived and died. Analysis of skeletons discovered in the 1980s show that death came swiftly, at temperatures of 500 degrees. Pompeii and Herculaneum now face a double threat: the cities are crumbling for lack of resources to conserve them, and Vesuvius is on course to erupt again.

- DVD 576.8 J92 Judgment day : intelligent design on trial. Widescreen ed. [United States] : WGBH Educational Foundation, c2007.
Narrator: Jay O. Sanders. "Judgment day: intelligent design on trial captures the turmoil that tore apart the community of Dover, Pennsylvania, in a landmark battle over the teaching of evolution in public schools. In 2004, the Dover school board ordered science teachers to read a statement to high school biology students about an alternative to Darwin's theory of evolution called intelligent design--the idea that life is too complex to have evolved naturally and so must have been designed by an intelligent agent. The teachers refused to comply, and both parents and teachers filed a lawsuit in federal court accusing the school board of violating the constitutional separation of church and state. ... Featuring trial reenactments based on court transcripts and interviews with key participants and expert scientists, this program presents the case of Kitzmiller v. Dover School District."-- Container.

Mexico : a story of courage and conquest. New York, NY : A&E Home Video :, c1999.
Narrator: Francisco Rivela. v.1 God, gold and glory -- "A&E uncovers the story of the ancient empires that tamed the high valleys and rugged mountains of Mexico. Visit the awe-inspiring ruins of Teotihuacan and Palenque, relics of the Toltec and Mayan civilizations. Explore the mysteries of these sophisticated cultures, including their practice of human sacrifice. Trace the waves of conquest that made the Aztecs the most powerful people in the New World, and the battles with the Spanish that brought their empire to its knees in little over a year." v.2 From Independence to the Alamo -- "This video reveals what life was like in colonial Mexico, where the Catholic Church was the dominant force in daily life. Ironically, it was a priest who raised the banner of revolution and led a barefoot army against the king. Relive the storied Battle of the Alamo, which forever colored Mexico's relationship with its powerful neighbor to the north." . v.3 Battle for North America -- "A&E chronicles the waves of fighting that rocked the fledgling nation, from the "Pastry War" with France to the Mexican-American War. Discover how the war with Mexico shaped the careers of pivotal figures from the American Civil War, including Jefferson Davis, Winfield Scott and Robert E. Lee. And trace the rise of arguably the most influential Mexican leader of all, Benito Juarez." . v.4 Revolution and rebirth -- "A&E provides the story of the revolution waged by rogue bandits like Pancho Villa and peasant saints like Emiliano Zapata. A generation was lost, but through their sacrifice a modern nation was born. Discover how Mexico finally gained stability under the rule of the Institutional Revolutionary Party, and examine the problems that face the nation today." .

Narrator: Peter Coyote ; voices, Philip Bosco, Carl Lumbly, Tim Clark, Tom Hanks, Amy Madigan, Yumi Mizui, Sho Wada, Adam Arkin, Andy Garcia, Kevin Conway, James Kyson Lee, Albert McFadyen and George Takei. To battle unemployment in the Great Depression, Franklin D. Roosevelt creates the Civilian Conservation Corps, which spawns a "golden age" for the parks through major renovation projects. In a groundbreaking study, a young NPS biologist named George Melendez Wright discovers widespread abuses of animal habitats and pushes the service to reform its wildlife policies. Congress narrowly passes a bill to protect the Everglades in Florida as a national park the first time a park has been created solely to preserve an ecosystem, as opposed to scenic beauty. As America becomes entrenched in World War II, Roosevelt is pressured to open the parks to mining, grazing and lumbering. The president also is subjected to a storm of criticism for expanding the Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming by accepting a gift of land secretly purchased by John D. Rockefeller Jr.

Narrator: Peter Coyote ; voices Lee Stetson, Adam Arkin, Philip Bosco, Kevin Conway, Tom Hanks, Josh Lucas, Carolyn McCormick, Tom Bodett, Tim Clark, Murphy Guyer, Gene Jones, Amy Madigan, Eli Wallach. In 1851, word spreads across the country of a beautiful area of California' Yosemite Valley, attracting visitors who wish to exploit the land's scenery for commercial gain and those who wish to keep it pristine. Among the latter is a Scottish-born wanderer named John Muir, for whom protecting the land becomes a spiritual calling. In 1864, Congress passes an act that protects Yosemite from commercial development for "public use, resort and recreation" the first time in world history that any government has put forth this idea and hands control of the land to California. Meanwhile, a "wonderland" in the northwest corner of the Wyoming territory attracts visitors to its bizarre landscape of geysers, mud pots and sulfur pits. In 1872, Congress passes an act to protect this land as well. Since it is located in a territory, rather than a state, it becomes America's first national park: Yellowstone.

DVD 917.3 N277b episode 3 The national parks. : America's best idea. Widescreen ed. [United States] : PBS Home Video ;, c2009. Introduction -- John Muir of the Rockies -- Incandescent enthusiasm -- See America first -- New land -- Mount desert -- The paradox -- The windows of heaven -- Zion -- The grandest canyon on earth -- It's Mr. Dorr. Narrator: Peter Coyote ; voices, Sam Waterston, Adam Arkin, Trina Carmody, Murphy Guyer, Derek Jacobi, Josh Lucas, Lee Stetson, Philip Bosco, Kevin Conway, Tom Hanks, John Lithgow, Campbell Scott, John Trudell. In the early 20th century, America has a dozen national parks, but they are a haphazard patchwork of special places under the supervision of different federal agencies. The conservation movement, after failing to stop the Hetch Hetchy dam, pushes the government to establish one unified agency to oversee all the parks, leading to the establishment of the National Park Service in 1916. Its first director, Stephen Mather, a wealthy businessman and passionate park advocate who fought vigorously to establish the NPS, launches an energetic campaign to expand the national park system and bring more visitors to the parks. Among his efforts is to protect the Grand Canyon from encroaching commercial interests and establish it as a national park, rather than a national monument.

DVD 917.3 N277b episode 2 The national parks. : America's best idea. Widescreen ed. [United States] : PBS Home Video ;, c2009. Introduction -- The grand tour -- Calvary protects the parks -- The dust of centuries -- For ourselves and our children -- The greatest good -- The most vital man -- Leave it as it is -- Distance in his eyes -- The devil and his relations -- Credits. Narrator: Peter Coyote ; voices, Lee Stetson, Philip Bosco, Kevin Conway, Murphy Guyer, Tom Hanks, Derek Jacobi, Gene Jones, Marcus Lowell Smith, Josh Lucas, Amy Madigan, Caroly McCormick, Campbell Scott. By the end of the 19th century, widespread industrialization has left many Americans worried about whether the country will have any pristine land left. At the same time, poachers in the parks are rampant, and visitors think nothing of littering or carving their names near iconic sites like Old Faithful. Congress has yet to establish clear judicial authority or appropriations for the protection of the parks. This sparks a conservation movement by organizations such as the Sierra Club, led by John Muir; the Audubon Society, led by George Bird Grinnell; and the Boone and Crockett Club, led by Theodore Roosevelt. The movement fails, however, to stop San Francisco from building the Hetch Hetchy dam at Yosemite, flooding Muir's "mountain temple" and leaving him broken-hearted before he dies.

Correspondent, Hedrick Smith. "More than three decades after the Clean Water Act, two iconic waterways -- the great coastal estuaries of Puget Sound and the Chesapeake Bay -- are in perilous condition. With polluted runoff still flowing in from industry, agriculture and massive suburban development, scientists fear contamination to the food chain and drinking water for millions of people. A growing list of endangered species also is threatened in both estuaries. [This film] examines the rising hazards to human health and the ecosystem and why it's so hard to keep our waters clean." -

Rome : engineering an empire. New York, NY : History Channel, c2007.
Using extensive state-of-the-art CGI animation this documentary chronicles the spectacular as well as sordid history of the Roman Empire from the rise of Julius Caesar in 55 BC to its fall around 537 AD. The CGI animation gives the viewers an opportunity to see Rome's greatest structures the way the ancient Romans saw them. The insights of engineers, archaeologists and historians add depth to segments on Hadrian's Wall, Caesar's Bridge, the aqueducts, the Colosseum, the Pantheon, the Baths of Caracalla, and the remains of Emperor Nero's lavish Golden Palace for a rare look at how one of Rome's most notorious megalomaniacs lived. Also never-before-seen footage shot on a diving expedition in the water channels underneath the Colosseum, channels once used to flood the arena for mock naval battles.

Six days in June : the war that redefined the Middle East. Boston : WGBH Boston Video, c2007.
Although the fighting lasted for only six days in June of 1967, the effects of the Six Day War are still apparent today. On its 40th anniversary, the region remains trapped in conflict and is every bit as explosive as it was then. For Israel, the 1967 war was a military success. But it also redrew the map of the Middle East and mired the region in a never-ending cycle of occupation, terrorism and reprisal. The Six Day War forever changed the politics of the Middle East by helping to destroy the secular basis of Pan-Arab nationalism and transform secular Zionism. It gave rise to a Palestinian nationalist movement and helped unleash the fury of fundamentalism. Shot on location in Israel, Palestine, Egypt, Syria, Jordan, Moscow and Washington, this powerful film takes us through the weeks that preceded the war, its six days of fighting and its aftermath that still lingers today.

Mesopotamia: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Magen Broshi, Neil Silberman, Brian Fagan, Nicholas Guild, Mouayed Said, Steve Tinney. Ancient Egypt: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Brian Fagan, Thomas Hoving, Zahi Hawass, Nasry Iskander. Aegean: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Charles Pellegrino, James Wright, John Prag, Richard Neave, Athanasia Kanta. Mesopotamia:

The roots of the world's major religions lie in the valleys of Mesopotamia's Fertile Crescent. Archaeologists, originally searching for the Garden of Eden and sites of other Biblical stories, have unearthed clues to the birth of civilization and cities belonging to its first great empires. Babylonia of the Jewish Exodus was preceded by the kingdom of Assyria, which was itself preceded by Sumer, and the first city--Ur. Ancient Egypt: In 1922, when Howard Carter opened the intact tomb of Tutankhamen the world marveled, for at last there was concrete evidence of details of daily life in the ancient civilization of Egypt. In the land of the pharaohs, a culture existed that believed in eternal life for all, from farmer to aristocrat. Now archaeologists are discovering the mysteries of the ancients, from preparing a mummy for burial to the technology necessary to raise enormous stone buildings. Aegean: Archaeologists are unearthing data that may support the existence of the island Atlantis, once thought to be only a legend, along with the origins of western culture. Searching for the proof of Homeric legends and Troy of the Iliad, Heinrich Schliemann, a German amateur, discovered an ancient city in Turkey, and went on to excavate at Mycenae. Schliemann's belief in an historical truth underlying myth inspired the discovery of Knossos on Crete. Another possible inspiration for Atlantis may be the island of Thera, destroyed by the most violent volcanic eruption in early human history.

Rome: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Keith Hopkins, James Packer, Ronald Mellor, Pierre Bikai, Jane Taylor, Robin Birley, Baldassare Conticello, Jennifer Roberts. Greece: Five hundred years before the birth of Christ, the small city-states of Greece began a period of cultural excellence, but none was more advanced than Athens. Under Pericles, the entire city strove for perfection in all things, and led developments in poetry, dramatic theater, and athletic achievement, as exemplified in the Olympic Games. Discover the architectural, intellectual, and artistic achievements of the period, and the elements that led to the end of this glorious "moment of excellence.". China: One of the world's oldest continuous civilizations, China experienced many "dynasties of power" from the 2nd century B.C. through the rise of the first emperor. The achievements of ancient China are illustrated by three dynasties: the Shang (1600 - 1046 BC), the Zhou (1046 - 476 BC), and the Ch'in or Qin (221- 206 BC), under whom China was first unified. While uniting a vast land the Chinese built the 2,600-mile Great Wall, invented paper, printing, the compass, and the world's first system of justice. Rome:

Originally a village on the Tiber River, the republic of Rome rose to become one of the world's first super power, dominating the known world under their Pax Romana. From Petra to Hadrian's Wall to Gibraltar, peace was kept by the Legions, while technological development was driven by the demands of administering far-flung military outposts. Thanks to the Roman passion for organization, archaeologists have discovered much about life in ancient Rome's spectacular empire.

Maya: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Arthur Demarest, Mary Ellen Miller, Justin Kerr, Linda Schele. Inca: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Michael Moseley, Reuben Garcia, Walter Alva. Maya: As Europe suffered through the Dark Ages, the culture of the Maya of Central America was reaching its apex. The classical Maya possessed a complicated writing system, mathematics for complex astrological calculations--still accurate today--and cities of stone set like jewels in the jungle. Life in the majestic temples, broad plazas, painted ball courts, and palaces revolved around the king--who was divine, infallible, and expected to pay for the success of his people with his blood. Inca: Located in what is now Peru, from AD 1438 to AD 1533 the Inca Empire used both conquest and peaceful assimilation to consolidate their rule over the peoples eking out an existence in the vast Andes mountain ranges. The Inca were not alone--the Nazca and Moche also ruled empires, worshipping their ancestors and the Sun. In the end, the extensive Inca road and messenger systems, their medical, engineering, and architectural skills were no match for the swords, horses, and greed of the Spanish conquistadors.

Africa: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Ali A. Mazrui, Peter Garlake, Stan Mudenge, Mark Horton. Tibet: Narrated by Sam Waterston ; with Richard Gere, Jamyang Norbu, Robert Thurman, His Holiness the 14th Dalai Lama, Tashi Tsering, Ani Panchen. Africa: White colonists in Africa couldn't believe that natives were responsible for the extensive kingdoms of Great Zimbabwe and the Swahili Coast, and thus credited the achievements of these ancient cultures to wandering Phoenicians, the Queen of Sheba, or Arab travelers. Cecil Rhodes' explorations' destroyed portions of Great Zimbabwe, but Gertrude Caton Thompson found, excavated, and first asserted that the ruins were of African origin. Their descendants are now reclaiming the legacy of these advanced, lost cultures, with the glories of their accomplishments acknowledged. Tibet: From the 7th to the 11th centuries, Tibetan warrior clans ruled large sections of Central Asia. Travelers on the Silk Road feared them, for their archers and cavalry were fierce and effective. The warriors were in turn conquered by Buddhism, which arrived in the 8th century. In 1642, Tibet became a theocracy as a monk took the throne of the nation, militarism was phased out, and three centuries of relative peace ensued. In the aftermath of the Chinese invasion and the exile of the Dalai Lama, the Tibetan culture, and its unique quest for peace, inner knowledge, and nirvana may cease to exist.
